

A Tiny Little Flower!

Eduardo Pinto-Ferreira*

Instituto Portugues de Oncologia Francisco Gentil, Portugal

*Corresponding author: Eduardo Pinto-Ferreira, Instituto Portugues de Oncologia Francisco Gentil, Portugal

E-mail: epintoferreira@gmail.com

Submitted: 27 June 2023

Accepted: 07 July 2023

Published: 12 July 2023

 <https://doi.org/10.63620/MKJCNR.2023.1017>

Citation: Pinto-Ferreira, E. (2023) A Tiny Little Flower!. J of Clin Nur Rep, 2(3), 01.

It was a beautiful garden, full of flowers, which people visited and many bought flowers from this garden!

One day, while taking care of his plants, the gardener noticed a tiny, beautiful flower that had begun to bloom, still very fragile! He was amazed because there was no flower like it in his garden! He tried to protect it from the strong branches of flowers that grew around it, watering it very carefully!

He did not know the origin of this flower, with a centre of bright and warm colours that reminded him of sunlight and with the ends of the petals of a soft bluish tone that reminded him of moonlight! So, he decided to name it after such a beautiful species and registered it under the name "Journal of Clinical Nursing & Reports"!

Yes, scientific journals are like flowers, that need to be watered every day to continue living! Articles submitted for publication are their nourishment, like water is to flowers in the garden! And the nourishment for this journal comes from one of the noblest professions in human society!

As a clinical journal, it is a reference journal for all the clinical cases that nurses want to send you. All nursing professionals have a clinical story, which is worth being known by their peers! Don't be inhibited in writing, because all will be read with interest!

I remind you that Our Lady, the Mother of Jesus, has great affection for the work of nurses! She looks with great tenderness at the nurses in their work, and feels sorry to see them suffer, out of empathy, with the suffering of the patients they treat!

Translated with www.DeepL.com/Translator (free version)